Standards Review Update

During the Sept 26, 2016 State Board of Education meeting, the ADE presented intent to open the process to review and revise the Science Standard (2004) and the Social Studies Standard (2005). Applications are currently being accepted (K-12 and Higher Ed) for working groups to work on the standards redesign. The first working group meeting will be at the end of January and continue monthly until the work is completed. We use an accordion model and continuously bring new working group members into the process depending on goals of the meeting and expertise of the applicant. Please feel free to share this information with any interested stakeholders.

This seminar addresses the complicated road endured by African Americans.

Anti-Defamation League Student Opportunities

STUDENTS
Peer Training: 2-3 Day Program for High School Students
Built on the knowledge that the most important influences on young people are the attitudes and behaviors of their peers, the Peer Training Program prepares young people to use the positive power of peer influence to promote respect and civility in their schools and beyond. This program teaches Peer Trainers to take action against prejudice by leading workshops and discussions with peers about the issues that impact their school. Their efforts play a key role in creating environments where differences are valued and respected. A great option for No Place for Hate Student Coalitions.

Peer Leadership: 2-3 Day Program for Middle School Students
Many school-based activities designed to promote leadership skills in youth fail to provide students with practical opportunities to develop and implement transferable skills in leadership. To be effective leaders, youth need opportunities to develop and practice these skills within a context that has personal meaning and relevance to them. As Peer Leaders, students learn about social justice issues through comprehensive training designed to address the specific issues they face each day in their schools and communities. Once trained, they work together over the course of the school year to plan and implement projects of their own choosing that they believe will promote a more respectful and inclusive school community. A great option for No Place for Hate Student Coalitions.
