

Girls Who Code: Teaching Girls to Code and Change the World

Presenter: Ngan Pham, Girls Who Code

Ngan Pham is a Regional Partnership Coordinator at Girls Who Code, the international nonprofit that works to close the gender gap in technology and change the image of what a programmer looks like and does. As a passionate advocate of social justice, Ngan works to foster strong community partnerships with school districts, library networks, municipal governments, state departments and community-based organizations so that every girl has the opportunity to gain the confidence and skills they need

Intended Audience: Teachers, Paraprofessionals, School Administrators, STEAM/STEM Coordinators, Federal Grants Administrators, Other District Level Employees
