

Building Relationships with Reluctant Students – Sean Carney, ADE

During this session, participants will learn practical and proven strategies for building and repairing relationships with their current students. Participants will write a brief plan outlining the action steps that they will take with specific students when they return to their campus. Participants will also be encouraged to share their successes with one another in an optional group email following the conference. This will allow us to celebrate successes, offer advice if needed, and stay connected to educators experiencing some of the same relationship challenges.

Intended Audience: Teachers, Paraprofessionals, Counselors, Professional Development Facilitators, School Administrators
